Chicago Originals Restaurant Week Various locations

Need an excuse to dine out this weekend? Support the annual local restaurant celebration Chicago Originals Restaurant Week, where nearly 20 restaurants offer two-, three- or four-course dinner menus for $29.11, as well as some wine bottles for the same price. Check out participating dining hot spots such as Cosina Grill (1706 W. Foster Ave. 773-271-7103), Trattoria Roma (1535 N. Wells St. 312-664-7907) or Sweets and Savories (1534 W. Fullerton Ave. 773-281-6778).

When: Times vary. Saturday-Sunday.

DRINK

80 Sips Challenge Various locations

In this, the beginning of a new year, challenge yourself to accomplish new feats—like a dignified drinking contest. Prep your liver for the tail end of the two-week-long wine-a-thon, challenging patrons to sip and rate six wines from around the world for a $25 gift certificate to BottleNotes.com and a chance at winning $100 gift certificates to local restaurants. Test your taste buds at four participating restaurants and bars: Hub 51 (51 W. Hubbard St.), Gilt Bar (230 W. Kinzie St.), Naha (500 N. Clark St.) or Maude's Liquor Bar (840 W. Randolph St.).

When: Times vary. Saturday-Sunday.

WATCH

Chicago Bears vs. Green Bay Packers viewing party Ukrainian Village

The Super Bowl is so close, Bears fans can taste it. And it doesn't taste anything like cheese. Round up the crew and cheer on your hometown team at the viewing party at The Fifty/50 (2047 W. Division St. 773-489-5050), where free slices of a Bleeding Heart Bakery cake decorated with a fire-breathing bear—real fire—will be available. The first 100 fans in the door also receive free "Green Bay Sucks" T-shirts.

When: 2 p.m. Sunday

NEW ON THE SCENE

Loop / Bucktown / Loop

Angels and Kings

230 N. Michigan Ave. 866-966-5166

New location inside the Hard Rock Hotel for the gritty rock 'n' roll bar, formerly in River North, owned by Chicago native Pete Wentz. Expect much of the same—upscale with an edge to it—in the new space on Michigan Avenue with a separate entrance from the hotel, opened Jan. 20.

Silom 12

1846-48 N. Milwaukee Ave. 773-489-1212

Traditional Thai spot inspired by Bangkok's financial district and in the former Café Moutou location. Serves contemporary Asian cuisine, with stir-fry, noodles, curries and rice dishes. The Bucktown eatery is BYOB for now, but the liquor license is on its way.

Med Kitchen

219 W. Washington St. 312-606-0633

Counter-service spot in the Loop featuring health-focused Mediterranean food. The brainchild of the owner of Hub's in Lincoln Square, the menu includes breakfast sandwiches on pita bread, as well as chicken kabobs and hummus.

HEAR

Liz Phair Wrigleyville

The recently-raved-about Lissie show at Lincoln Hall may be sold out, but another hometown favorite is ready for a hearty welcome. Chicago indie-rock darling Liz Phair returns to her roots for a show at Metro (3730 N. Clark St. 773-549-0203), more than 15 years after the release of her iconic album "Exile in Guyville." The singer recently reissued the formerly out-of-print album after signing with an independent label and also releasing a new album, "Funstyle." Nostalgic much?

When: 8 p.m. Saturday.

ANA FERNATT
ritaredeye@tribune.com

Being sexy is a state of mind

Sexy is an art. Like sculpture, painting or poetry, it comes more naturally to some than others.

I love playing basketball, but I will never beat Joakim Noah in one-on-one. Similarly, I may never be able to purr pure sex appeal like Sophia Loren, who most guys would readily take on the expressway to Pleasuretown even in her golden years.

When I was growing up, I studied sex icons such as Kate Moss and pre-crazy Britney Spears the way most people study math. I thought that if I understood the map to seduction, I could wear the right lipstick, have my mom drop me off at the mall and—wow, bam, bang—I'd hook myself a prom date! As if wearing Joy by Jean Patou would awaken some sort of primal lust in men and suddenly they wouldn't be sure if it was Ana or a reincarnation of Marilyn Monroe.

I think I was missing the point.

I have a serious weakness for figure-hugging dresses and spiky heels. I love the way my legs look in a tiny hemline. My ex-boyfriend, however, told me that he fell for me the day I wore flip-flops, shorts and a plain gray tank top. After all the effort I put into looking good for him, it was the time I just threw on something comfortable that I really caught him. It was a complete accident. To see me peel away my layers of insecurity was the sexiest strip tease he could imagine.

Turns out, sexy is nothing specific. It's the confidence to slip on your own shoes, whether they be skyscraper pumps or fresh sneakers, plant your own footsteps and carry yourself along the path that you want to travel. Sexy is allowing your individuality to fill out your entire body, wearing it proudly. Sexy is when your energy exudes from you like perfume. Sexy is however you define it, as long as you express it fully. There's just something so alluring about being unapologetically you.

Here's what else I've learned: The essence of sexy is to be sexy when no one is watching. Wear your lacy panties when no one will see them. Take a pole dancing class and don't tell anyone. Sleep in a silk nightie when you are all alone. Have Champagne and strawberries just because it's Tuesday. Consider the things that make you feel the most sensual and do them for yourself. The rest of the world will take notice.

I could never be sexy in the same way as Sophia Loren, Marilyn Monroe or the girl standing at the bar next to me. And who would want to be?

Sexy can't be copied. There is no blueprint. Once you understand what it feels like to be sexy in your own way, once you begin to speak your body's language, there will be nothing accidental about your sexy.

BEAR OF A WEEK

If you're anything like us, you've spent the better part of the past six days walking around mumbling, "da Bearsssss" to yourself. So in the spirit of the Monsters of the Midway, we found other newsmakers with that special Bear-like quality.

BEAR OF AN AWARDS SHOW HOST

Ricky Gervais

From the way celebs acted at the Golden Globes on Sunday, you'd have thought they'd never been the recipients of gentle ribbing before. It's not some big secret that "The Tourist" stunk. GETTY IMAGES/PHOTO

BEAR OF A TRASH-TALKER

Bart Scott

After a win over the Patriots, the Jets linebacker called out analysts Tom Jackson and Keyshawn Johnson, then barked something about not being able to wait for the Steelers matchup. Grrrrr. GETTY IMAGES/FILE PHOTO

BEAR OF A POLITICAL PARTY

The GOP

Barely weeks into the new session, House Republicans voted to repeal the last Congress' health care reform. Chances aren't good for repeal in the Senate, but it doesn't look like the GOP's last battle with Democrats.

THE DIGIT

That's the number of reputed mafia members arrested in an East Coast-based operation Thursday, reportedly the largest action in one day against the mob by the FBI.

ARM

Simply put, the dude can throw. Cutler possesses "a rare arm—very, very rare, a God-given gift," Bears General Manager Jerry Angelo told the Tribune before the 2009 season. And Cutler knows it. "On game days, there's nobody in the league who's going to throw it harder than I am," he said. Does the football always end up where Cutler wants? No, but he did cut his interception total from 26 in his first season with the Bears to 16 this season.

HEAD

How important is it to win the NFC championship against Green Bay? "It's almost like a little mini-Super Bowl," Cutler said this week. "I know Chicago will be really disappointed if we don't win this game." So he's not dumb. And the Bears are getting better at protecting their prized QB's noggin after he was sacked nine times in the first half against the New York Giants and left the game with a concussion.

MOUTH

If Cutler doesn't feel like talking, he doesn't. The QB left reporters frustrated during one interview session leading up to the Seahawks game by giving terse answers to routine questions. "Those of us around the Bears quarterback regularly learned a long time ago to stop caring or asking Cutler what kind of tree he would be if he could be any tree," Tribune columnist David Haugh wrote after that awkward exchange. So he's the strong, silent type, huh?

ANATOMY

JAX

RedEye

He's on the cover of Sports Illustrated. He's dating a sexy reality TV star. And he's taken the Bears to the precipice of Super Bowl XLV in just his second season with the team.

You could say Jay Cutler has it all, but he certainly won't. In fact, the 27-year-old quarterback out of Vanderbilt doesn't say much of anything about himself. His gruff public persona is part of what makes No. 6 alternately maddening and fascinating.

"I don't worry about that [stuff]," Cutler recently said. "I don't know what my public image is."

Is it any wonder you haven't seen Cutler hawking deodorant on TV like teammate Brian Urlacher?

Just last week, ESPN's Rick Reilly wrote a column about Cutler that began, "For a man from Santa Claus, Ind., Jay Cutler is one of the least jolly people you've ever met."

Needless to say, that column did not go over well with many die-hard Bears fans, especially after Cutler passed for two touchdowns and ran for two more in the 35-24 divisional playoff win over Seattle. That victory propelled Chicago into Sunday's NFC championship game against the archrival Green Bay Packers at Soldier Field.

So Cutler did get the last laugh.

"Mr. Reilly wasn't very happy with me," he said after the win over the Seahawks. "There are a lot of distractions, especially the situation we're in now. We've just got to focus in and do our jobs."

As Cutler prepares for a game that could send him to his first Super Bowl, RedEye deconstructs what we know about the star quarterback.

STOMACH

Think absorbing sacks is tough? Try dealing with insulin shots to the stomach, as Cutler has done as part of his treatment for Type 1 diabetes. He was diagnosed in 2008. "There is no real room for error," Cutler said in a 2009 video for a diabetes support group. "If I go out and have a bad game and my numbers are way off, I'm going to get criticized for it. I can get real low and not know exactly what's going on and get hit the wrong way and hurt myself. There are definitely dangers out there."

HAND

There's no championship ring ... yet. But give the guy a break. After all, Cutler is undefeated in the postseason—the win over the Seahawks was his first appearance in the NFL playoffs.

HEART

Sunda, Hub 51, Cuvee, Rockit ... you name the trendy Chicago club, Cutler and "The Hills" star Kristin Cavallari have been spotted there together. "I'm in love and it's been great," Cavallari recently gushed to people.com. And during Cutler's monster game last week, she tweeted, "Yaaaaaa that's my boyfriend!!!! Woot woot." Looks like this jock really does have a heart underneath all that muscle. Take that, Rick Reilly.

FEET

Finally, a use for Cutler's feet besides dodging massive defensive linemen. In last week's playoff win over Seattle, he showed he's nimble when necessary, running for 43 yards and two touchdowns on eight rushes (that's nine more rushing yards and two more rushing TDs than Seattle had as a team). Cutler might not know where his throws are going all the time, but his legs appear to have a great sense of direction.

Hold the country

Decemberists' latest album strays from ambitious predecessors

By Glenn Gamboa

NEWSDAY

How do you follow an elaborate song cycle of old English folk songs about love? Well, if you're The Decemberists, you apparently channel your inner Wilco.

Yes, "The King Is Dead" is about as much of an about-face from 2009's "The Hazards of Love" that The Decemberists could manage, trading in broad epics for decidedly smaller alt-country stories with the help of R.E.M.'s Peter Buck on guitar and the gorgeous backing vocals of Gillian Welch.

Head Decemberist Colin Meloy said that in the middle of the "Hazards of Love" tour, he wanted to simply play some "normal songs." Well, he has plenty to choose from here.

ALBUM

The Decemberists

What set The Decemberists apart from the rest of the indie-folk crowd were their ambitions—their desire to draw inspiration from unlikely sources, including Irish myths and Japanese folk tales. Remove those ambitions, and much of "The King Is Dead" could be from almost anyone.

The lovely "January Hymn" is a simple delight, but it bears no distinguishing Decemberists marks. "Don't Carry It All" sounds like Whiskeytown-era Ryan Adams. "Down by the Water" could be "Out of Time"-era R.E.M. And "Rise to Me" feels like Jeff Tweedy interpreting Neil Young. It's unexpected to hear Meloy and friends at their most straightforward.

"The King is Dead" is like a PB&J being delivered when you were expecting a wild Asian fusion tasting menu. It's well built and dependable but still a surprise.

Justified: The Complete First Season

Timothy Olyphant's slow-burning intensity as U.S. Marshal Raylan Givens made this FX series must-see TV. (It returns Feb. 8.)

Based on a character from Elmore Leonard's "Fire in the Hole," Raylan is a quiet hero who returns to his Kentucky roots and ends up policing old friends and enemies including Boyd Drowder, who happens to be both. Walton Goggins was so menacing in the pilot that the producers signed him as a permanent cast member. The DVD set includes commentaries and various featurettes. CURT WAGNER, REDEYE

Some Kind of Trouble

James Blunt

James Blunt is no longer the fragile emo-folk flower he portrayed in his delicate debut single, "You're Beautiful." "Some Kind of Trouble" finds him more upbeat and confident, in the uptempo come-on "Stay the Night" and the funk-rock "Turn Me On." Sure, there's still plenty of drama in the aching ballads "No Tears" and "Heart of Gold," but Blunt is actually more interesting when he lets loose. ("Superstar" even has a guitar solo!) He'll be better off pursuing this kind of "Trouble." GLENN GAMBOA, NEWSDAY

Wuthering Heights Wild and Wanton Edition

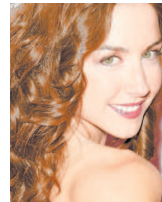

By Emily Bronte and Annabella Bloom
Literary lovers who long have thought, "Yeah, 'Wuthering Heights' is great and all, but it would be even better with some hot sex scenes in it" are in luck. Annabella Bloom has kindly provided us with some soft-core porn and it's, um, inserted right into the classic text by Emily Bronte. Hey, we all knew that Catherine and Heathcliff weren't just innocently wandering around the moors, but now we no longer have to imagine just what was going on out there. Another title in the "Wild and Wanton" series is Jane Austen's "Pride and Prejudice." EMILY ROSENBAUM, REDEYE

2-6 p.m. Sunday, SOAPnet

This Canadian romcom-sci fi mash-up is a delightfully quirky surprise starring the endearing Erin Karpluk (left) as Erica Strange, a 30-something woman who, when the series began two seasons ago, could not find a man. Then she met Dr. Tom (Michael Riley) and her life changed. Suddenly she was able to travel back in time for do-overs. In these Season 2 episodes airing prior to the Season 3 debut Jan. 26, Erica learns that a boyfriend doesn't make your life perfect. CURT WAGNER, REDEYE

Takers

Available now

The crooks—played by Paul Walker, Idris Elba, Michael Ealy and Chris Brown—have the charisma to be a 21st century version of the Rat Pack. That would make Hayden Christensen the comic relief of the group. It's as if director John Luessenhop decided to make an "Ocean's Eleven" type film with a more diverse cast. Had Luessenhop been able to maintain that design, he'd have had a killer film. But a change in tone and direction midway through the film turns "Takers" into a cheesy thug drama. RICK BENTLEY, MCT

The gargantuan 80-ounce beer towers at Division Ale House have made it a trusty meeting place for group drinking along Division Street. But when the beer runs dry and the next morning arrives, the Irish-influenced pub is up for the challenge of wiping away that hangover. When we heard a few new brunch dishes were up for grabs, we ventured over on a particularly rough Saturday morning to drown our hangover blues in some spicy blood mary mix.

Server says: Skip the veggie omelet and go with the strawberry-topped Belgian waffle or the chilaquiles. Make the meal a deal by opting for the $20 prix-fixe brunch, with the choice of one of the four brunch entrees and bottomless mimosas, build-your-own-bloody marys, juice or soda.

We say: We're glad we listened. The hefty tortilla strips in the chilaquiles ($9.95 a la carte) held up well beneath a tower of freshly cooked scrambled eggs, mild salsa, onions, sour cream and tender chicken. Seriously, these things defied all logic by remaining crisp after 10 minutes under a pile of juicy chicken and toppings.

Sweet stuff: The Belgian waffle's ($9.95 a la carte) crispy edges and doughy center were played up by a sweet and sticky drizzle of maple syrup, modest helping of whipped cream and several fresh strawberries. Delicious? Yes. Filling? Not even close. Up the diameter a bit, please, so we don't go home hungry.

Is it lunchtime yet? The bar's regular menu is also served all day, and the black-and-tan mac and cheese ($10) is more than worth skipping the traditional brunch items. The creamy cheddar cheese sauce spiked with Harp and Guinness is comfort food defined.

Day drinking: The standard mimosa will do for bubbly fans, but the bloody mary bar is the real treat. Well-stocked with everything from veggies and cheeses to pepperoni slices, the toppings complement the mix and your choice of three house-infused vodkas. Skip the ginger- and bacon-infused options and go for the pepper-infused, which gives the already spicy drink a nice kick.

Crowd surfing: A surprisingly solid set of dressed-up parents and grandparents mix well with lackadaisical 20-somethings during the noon rush. Go any later and be prepared for loud sports on the TVs and an influx of early afternoon drinkers standing wherever they can find a spot to park.

Strawberry-topped Belgian waffle

Bottom line: The entree options are diverse enough to satisfy most cravings, though nothing qualifies as unforgettable. For a low-key brunch option with a kickin' bloody mary or three on the side, Division Ale House serves it up right.

Long journey lacks emotional spark

In 1941 a group of men escape imprisonment in Siberia and brave extreme cold and constant hunger to walk 4,000 miles to safety in India. The film stars Jim Sturgess (“Across the Universe”), Ed Harris, Colin Farrell and Dragos Bucur (“Police, Adjective”), with Saoirse Ronan (“The Lovely Bones”) as a girl the band of survivors meets on their journey.

The buzz: This is the first movie in seven years for director Peter Weir (“Master and Commander: The Far Side of the World,” “The Truman Show”), who has long made material rise above a number of potential traps. That cast seems pretty random, though.

The verdict: Unlike “127 Hours,” whose five-day ordeal speeds by, “The Way Back” feels as long as it should. Snow-covered trees, expansive mountains, intimidating desert; the film thrives on the brutal conditions of endless terrain, though a lack of narrative imagination means the story covers more physical than emotional distance.

Weir articulates the yearning for freedom from a vast array of oppressors (including mosquitoes) and a sense of lingering guilt from the hard decisions involved in survival.

For some, the more recognizable guilt will be your own when you grumble about five minutes in the Chicago cold. MATT PAIS IS THE METROMIX

FROZEN IN CRIME

Disappearance of Stanley Cup-clinching puck remains a mystery to Blackhawks

By Ryan Smith

FOR REDEYE

The Mystery of the Missing Hockey Puck soon could become a cold case. More than seven months later, no one seems to know what happened to the puck Patrick Kane shot for the winning goal in Game 6 of last year's Stanley Cup finals—despite a $50,000 reward from Haray Caray's restaurants. The subject is bound to come up again when Philadelphia, the team the Blackhawks beat in the finals, visits the United Center on Sunday. To find the culprit of this hockey whodunit, RedEye rounds up the suspects.

CHRIS PRONGER

Philadelphia Flyers

Guilty: Given that he was saddled with the nickname "Puck Burglar" after he nabbed two pucks in the Blackhawks' first two victories in last year's finals, we wouldn't be surprised if the surly defenseman managed to pilfer the Hawks' most coveted memento from the series.

Innocent: After his previous thieving shenanigans, the Hawks likely kept a careful eye on Pronger.

BEN EAGER

Atlanta Thrashers

Guilty: The former Hawks winger snagged the puck from Game 5. Kane suggested in training camp that Eager was a likely culprit.

Innocent: Eager denied Kane's claim and told ESPN that he smelled a setup. "I think they were just pushing the blame on me," Eager said, joking. "You know, 'Blame it on Eager because he's out of town.'"

PATRICK SHARP

Blackhawks

Guilty: Kane also implicated Sharp as a suspect. The Hawks winger also got married in July—could the puck have been the ultimate wedding cake topper?

Innocent: Sharp has denied knowledge of the puck's whereabouts. "I looked our team president in the eye and told him I didn't have it," he told ESPN. "I know better than to lie to John [McDonough]. I don't have it. I don't know where it is."

PATRICK KANE

Blackhawks

Guilty: Kane WAS the one who scored the goal; perhaps he felt he deserved it for his personal collection. Also, he may have accused Sharp and Eager to throw off the scent.

Innocent: Take a look at that innocent, angelic face. Is that the face of a thief?

TOPIC

It's been so long since the Bears met the Packers in the playoffs ...

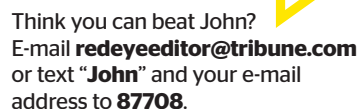

... the only texts that Brett Favre cared about were history, math and anatomy.

... Tracy has dubbed it Pun A.D.

... a nice pair of gams would have turned into hams.

... radio trash talk has replaced muskets at dawn as rival fans' preferred way to settle disputes.

... the last time they met, Larry King was only 64.

Enter a number between 1 and 9 in the empty squares. The clues are the numbers in the white circles that give the sum of the solution numbers: above the line are across clues; below the line are down clues. Thus, a clue of 3 will produce a solution of 2 and 1, and a 5 will produce 4 and 1, or 2 and 3, but, of course, which squares they go in will depend on the solution of a clue in the other direction. No digit can be repeated in a solution. Answer at redvechicago.com/puzzles. EDITED BY MICHAEL MEPHAM

Make a 2- to 7-letter word from the letters in each row. Add points of each word, using scoring directions at right. Finally, 7-letter words get a 50-point bonus. "Blanks" used as any letter have no point value. All the words are in the Official Scrabble Players Dictionary, 4th Edition. Find the answer at redevechicago.com/puzzles.

Mind of Britney

RedEye delves into Spears' lyrics to find out what's on her mind

Taylor Swift who? Britney Spears may be almost 30, twice divorced and a mom of two, but this week she's proved that she's still the blonde to beat. Brit's brand-new track, "Hold It Against Me," tops the latest Billboard Hot 100. And with that, Spears joins Mariah Carey as the only artists to debut multiple songs at No. 1. (Britney's only other No. 1 debut was "3" in 2009.) Britney's been kinda quiet lately, but we ran some of the lyrics to "Hold It Against Me" through RedEye's handy-dandy lyrics translator machine to determine what we can learn about the pop princess. ARIEL ALEXOVICH, REDEYE

Lyric: "Please forgive me if I'm coming on too strong."

Translation: "Kanye, I didn't mean to steal the thunder from your new song with Jay-Z."

Lyric: "I might be a little hazy, but you just cannot deny there's a spark in between us."

Translation: "Dear Grammy producers, please let me perform on your show next month. I'll be good."

Lyric: "Hey, you might think that I'm crazy, but you know I'm just your type."

Translation: "The Zodiac signs changed? Guess what, I'm an Ophiuchus now."

Lyric: "So come here, a little closer, wanna whisper in your ear."

Translation: "Jason, honey, I need to stop at Rite Aid. Don't let the paparazzi see—oops, too late."

Lyric: "If I said I want your body now, would you hold it against me?"

Translation: "Pauly D, you called my song 'amazing'? You want to come over?" [Note: The last part happened only in Pauly's dreams.]

Lupe Fiasco shows his love for the Bears in a new ad for Pepsi MAX.

"The Packers better punt it out of bounds or Hester's gonna turn them into clowns and jesters," spits the Chicago rapper about Sunday's NFC Championship game between Chicago and Green Bay.

The spot, which also features rapper Nick Jarvis, will be played at the two-minute warning during Sunday's broadcast. Fiasco's is the latest video in a series featuring Big Boi, Talib Kweli and B.o.B.

Ellen vs. Oprah

NFL playoff fever has struck daytime TV. On her show Friday, Ellen DeGeneres challenged Oprah Winfrey with a "friendly wager" on Sunday's Packers/Bears game. "If the Bears win, I will replace my Ellen mug with an Oprah mug for one day," "The Ellen DeGeneres Show" host said.

"And if the Packers win, you will give me your new network. So when the Packers win, OWN will be mine!"

Beyonce's got a powerful new ally in her bid to win an Oscar. Clint Eastwood has signed on to direct her in the latest update of "A Star Is Born," the Los Angeles Times reports. The film has been in the works for awhile with Beyonce set to play an up-and-coming singer who falls in love with an alcoholic former superstar.

Hot on the heels

Bravo's "The Real Housewives of Beverly Hills" ended its season Thursday with freshly kicked-to-the curb Camille Grammer trying to cry her eyes out instead of attending a friend's birthday party. Turns out her soon-to-be ex hubby, actor Kelsey Grammer, already is hinting a wedding announcement to fiancée Kayte Walsh may be just weeks away, People said.
